PUNCH DRUNK PURCELL vs. TATE NEWELL

The camera pans around a jam-packed American Airlines Center from tonight's edition of UNCUT! Soon, we're on The Commentation Station on stage left with our commentator hostesses with the most...eses.

DDK:

Welcome one and all to UNCUT! I am "Downtown" Darren Keebler and with me, you know who.... Lance Warner!

Lance:

What a match we have lined up! Following Henry Keyes defending the FIST of DEFIANCE against a very game Doctor Ned Reform, what's next for The Kraken? Who will step up to the champion come DEFCON?

DDK:

Questions we have yet to answer, but with DEFCON just over the horizon in less than two months time, everyone wants in on the action! Tonight, we've got Heavy Artillery in action against the Gulf Coast Connection, but up first, we have Punch Drunk Purcell of The Lads against BRAZEN star "Young Bull" Tate Newell!

Lance:

Purcell is in no mood tonight after what happened with The Lads at the hands of Titanes Familia! Tonight, he's on the warpath and if I'm Tate Newell, I'd be pulling a Heisenberg and treading carefully!

Punch Drunk Purcell:

YOU ABOUT TO GET THIS WORK, BOY! COME ON!

Newell charges at Purcell with all his might and SMACKS into him loudly with a running shoulder block off the ropes. Punchy stumbles back, but keeps his ground and pretends to dust off his shoulder. He dares The Young Bull to take another shot. He does by hitting the ropes and going for another shoulder block. This time, Purcell stumbles back a little bit further but his low center of gravity keeps him grounded.

Lance:

Purcell better be careful! Tate Newell likes to use a striking spear off the ropes that he calls The Horns! If he can land that, he could be on the verge of an upset!
